ABOUT LILY

Director of Green Walls at an award-winning green building firm, Urbanstrong, Lily is also a Biophilic Designer and Living Wall specialist. In 2013, she co-founded Urban Blooms, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit, to bring large-scale, publicly accessible living walls into dense urban environments. Today, she closely works with architects/designers and contractors to best offer a technology suited for their budget, design parameters and scale.

With experience across the United States as an environmentalist, biophilic designer, project manager, and living wall design-build specialist, Lily has a unique perspective on how we can unify our approach to design, planning, and development in a way that recognizes the social, environmental, and economic value of living architecture; to make our urban areas more resilient to climate change.

ABOUT URBANSTRONG

Urbanstrong works with architects, developers, property managers, and building owners looking to bring nature into the built environment in order to purify the air, increase cognitive function, improve occupant health and wellness, reduce urban heat island effect, boost property values, bolster branding, and more.

Urbanstrong offers consulting, financing, and design-build-maintenance services for living walls and several rooftop development solutions including vegetative, stormwater, solar, amenity or farming.
